

Category A judges: Krista Vilta (Est), Christo Coetzer (South Africa); Katie Freeth (UK)

“The presentations in Category A were hugely diverse in population numbers and the ways in which the communities address the challenges to create liveable communities.

Mostly the presentations addressed the universally discussed environmental issues but lacked perspective on the bigger picture.

There seem to be a trend towards improved community participation and an understanding of the wider health issues affecting modern society and ageing populations.

The presentations were from diverse cultures which reflected the different challenges each community has to address to create a truly liveable community.”
